Veterans Urge Ohio and New York Opponents to Get Together on Ticket.

(By International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA—High chieftains of the Republican party were as uncertain today over the identity of their 1940 presidential nominee as the milling crowds of delegates and sympathizers who jammed a score of hotels.

On the week-end eve of their convention, some leaders asserted that there is a slow trend toward Ohio Senator Robert A. Taft. The headquarters of Thomas E. Dewey countered with a claim that the New York racket-buster will have 400 votes on the first ballot, which would be enough to make him the convention's favorite and likely choice.

Strong organizations meanwhile harangued hotel crowds in favor of the "dark horses." Wendell Willkie, New York utility executive, and Governor Arthur H. James, of Pennsylvania. Lesser followings were urging delegates to note the availabilities of Senator Styles Bridges, of New Hampshire, New York publisher Frank E. Gannett, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, and Hanford MacNider, of Iowa.

On every side, leaders and delegates were declaring:

"This convention is wide open. It is a delegates' convention at last."

This was interpreted as meaning the delegates expect to nominate their own popular choice, instead of a candidate chosen for them by a few leaders in a "smoke-filled room." In other words, the candidate who proves most popular with the mass of delegates is expected to win.

The role of favorite at the moment is divided between Taft and Dewey. In some quarters, these two leaders are expected to get together early in the convention next week and settle the ticket between them. Quite a few leaders echo the sentiments of former Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, the dean of all Republicans attending the convention. Watson says:

"Taft and Dewey, between them have 650 to 750 delegates. If they use what I call ordinary

MAJOR STORM CENTERS OVER CABINET MOVE

Roosevelt Foreign Policies Attacked by Senate In Violent Debates.

STIMSON HEARING SET

Garner and Farley Discuss Appointments, Express Disapproval.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The administration's foreign policies and its program of aid for the Allies became major storm centers today in the tempest over President Roosevelt's appointment of two Republicans to the key defense posts in his cabinet.

With a formal hearing already ordered by the senate military committee on the naming of Henry L. Stimson to be secretary of war, the naval committee opened consideration of the nomination of Col. Frank Knox as secretary of the navy.

The Stimson and Knox appointments were discussed by Vice President Garner and Postmaster General Farley, friends said, in a long conference yesterday. Both men expressed disapproval of the president's action, it was reported, Garner with considerable vehemence.

The vice president likewise was represented in authoritative senate circles as disagreeing sharply with the administration's handling of foreign affairs.

The combination of foreign affairs and the Stimson-Knox nominations plunged the senate into a stormy debate marked by a demand that Mr. Roosevelt resign lest his policies bring "disaster." The house, too, heard wordy exchanges, among them inquiries whether Harry Woodring, the resigned secretary of war, had been "dismissed."

The furore prompted President Roosevelt at Hyde Park, N. Y., to remark that there were some people who think in terms of patriotic motives and some who think with partisan motives.

The demand for President Roosevelt's resignation came from Senator Nye (R.-N. D.), who told the senate that it "seemed certain" the president had promised military assistance to France.

"When the "terrible moment" to honor that pledge ar-

HYDE PARK, N. Y. — (AP) — James Forrestal, president of Dillon-Read and Company, New York investment firm, was appointed a $10,000-a-year administrative assistant to President Roosevelt today.

He will begin work next Wednesday. What his duties may be was not disclosed at the temporary White House, but he was expected to serve in some capacity as a liaison man for the president in handling the national defense program.

The new position is one of six created under the government reorganization act. Until today only three had been filled.

Mr. Roosevelt has indicated he might name one more administrative aide and leave the sixth job vacant, to be filled should some emergency arise.

Berlin Says Peace Talks Resumed In Compiegne Forest

Aerial Warfare Accelerated In Raids From English Channel to Suez Canal; British Bomb Berlin and Bremen; Nazi Warplanes Blast at Britain; Italian Fliers Busy.

BULLETIN

COMPIEGNE FOREST—(AP)—Authorized German sources said today they confidently expected the French delegation to sign an armistice this afternoon.

BULLETIN

BORDEAUX—(AP)—France announced today that her delegates would fly to Italy and discuss terms with the Italians before a general peace arrangement is reached with both of her enemies. The German armistice negotiations, however, will be concluded first.

(By Associated Press)

France's four envoys labored today in the sun-lit forest of Compiegne toward a "yes or no" answer to Adolf Hitler's terms.

One report that they had agreed to answer "yes" and might sign during the day, carried in a Berlin dispatch to the Rome newspaper Il Giornale D'Italia, was countered quickly by Stefani, official Italian news agency, which quoted Berlin "well informed sources" in denial that a decision had been reached.

The German radio declared flatly that negotiations, resumed at 10:30 a. m. (3:30 a. m. EST), were under way this afternoon.

A German authorized spokesman said it was "believed the four plenipotentiaries were back at Compiegne forest discussing terms with Col. Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, German chief of staff.

Complications were poor telephone connections between Berlin and German headquarters in the forest.

Confusion over a London radio report that the French had left Compiegne forest for Bordeaux might have resulted from the fact that, according to the German radio, the negotiators went to Paris last night for a few hours' rest.

At Bordeaux the French cabinet, in telephonic contact with its emissaries, reassembled to consider the momentous decision before it.

From the English channel to the Suez canal came accounts of air raids indicating a tremendous acceleration of aerial warfare.

ITALIAN PLANES ATTACK FLEET

Drop Bombs Over British and French Ships in Harbor at Alexandria.

(By Associated Press)

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt—Italian bombers sprayed explosives over Alexandria's harbor early today in Italy's first attempt to blast the British and French fleet here, but no warships were hit and most of the bombs fell harmlessly into the sea.

Anti-aircraft guns of the British and French fleets went into action when the first group of tri-motored bombers appeared at 1:15 a. m. and British fighter planes went up.

(This dispatch indicated that at least part of the French fleet, whose whereabouts have been unreported since France requested an armistice with Germany and Italy, is still co-operating with the British and is based beside British warships in Alexandria.

The Italians dropped a score of bombs in three appearances. One struck an Arab home near Moharrem Bay and others demolished three homes at Chatby Beach, a half-mile from the heart of the city.

Anti-aircraft fire and fighter planes forced the Italians to veer eastward along Alexandria's waterfront, where civilian casualties were reported. Details of the casualties were not given.

British airplanes and soldiers also were active in Africa.

The Royal Air Force at Cairo reported a bombardmen yesterday at Tobruk, Italian Libya, was followed by the spurt of heavy smoke from a large warship in the harbor.

Also from Cairo came a British report that British forces patroling the northern Kenya frontier captured an Italian post and destroyed well-stocked barracks. An Italian counter-attack with one armored fighting vehicle was held off while the work was completed.

Italy's bombers showered explosives over Alexandria harbor, seeking the British-French fleet based there; the British bombed Berlin, injuring seven persons, and attacked Bremen, injuring two.

Nazi warplanes blasted away at Britain during the night, killing three civilians, bringing the four-day total to 21 killed, 93 injured in the United Kingdom.

The British fought off the attacks, and said the Nazis were using "hit and run" tactics.

In the Mediterranean theater of war British planes struck at Tobruk, Italian Libya, and declared that smoke was pouring from a big warship as they streaked away, knocking out two Italian fighter planes that came at them.

The Italians reported they staged a series of air and naval attacks in the Mediterranean, sinking three enemy ships by submarines and heavily bombing Bizerte, Tunisia, and Marseille, France's great harbor on the Mediterranean.

In the confused military situation a vital question was the status of the French fleet, second in power only to Britain's. Apparently the Italians, in their Alexandria raids, still considered it fair prey.

Undoubtedly the Germans, demanding yesterday in the preamble of their armistice demands that France help Germany in her war on Britain, were trying, somehow, to get hold of it. French officers and men of the Mediterranean fleet, hooked up with the British fleet, were quoted as saying

BETTERED: Britain's Chance Improves With French Fleet

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Writer)

England's position on the eve of the German assault appears considerably bettered, in view of the word received in authoritative quarters in Washington that Britain already has taken over most of the French navy—a matter of vast importance to the Allied cause.

If the British are able to keep their hands on it, irrespective of the Nazi armistice terms, this most certainly will have a vital bearing on the trend of this last phase of the blitzkrieg.

The point is that Britain must depend greatly on her naval arm to wage war against Germany. Possession of the French navy would give the axis partners near-parity with the British fleet (the world's largest), increasing the gravity of England position.

It would appear from the Washington report that the British may not get much actual fighting value out of the fleet, because she cannot service the ships with munitions and spare parts (which largely differ from her own) without the French plants and machineshops now in enemy hands.

However, that isn't what matters so much. Britain's main concern is to keep these warships out of Hitler's possession.

That gives Britain a naval superiority over both Italy and Germany or perhaps better than two to one in tonnage. This means that Italy must be the possibly not too comfortable standard bearer of the Axis naval activities, since the German fleet has been heavily reduced by war operations.

A second slice of good fortune is understood to have fallen to England in the acquirement of a large number of French warplanes.

Only if Britain can withstand the furious bombardment from the air which undoubtedly will open

Signing of the Armistice of 1918--Hitler Reverses Positions Today

In a railroad car in the forest of Compiegne, 45 miles northeast of Paris, two Frenchmen, one Englishman, four Germans and one American met in November, 1918, to sign the terms of the armistice, a crushing defeat for Germany. Today, the scene is repeated, with a change in positions. France hears Hitler's terms of peace. In the drawing of that historic meeting 22 years ago are, left to right, General von Cundoll, General Winterfield, M. Erzberger and Count Obendorff, Germans; Admiral Weymss of Great Britain, General Foch of France, Admiral Sims of the United States and General Weygand of France. Of that group, only Weygand has been active in this war.

Richland County, Free of Debt, Lists $427,096 Budget

FIGURES HIKED $3,600 MORE THAN YEAR AGO

$2,000,000 Debt In 1928 To Be Paid Off This Year, Auditor Announces.

For the first time in 25 years, Richland county's budget which had been tentatively drafted today by the county budget commission, will contain no provision for debt retirement next year, because the county will have no bonded indebtedness by the end of 1940.

County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe, a member of the commission, said today the budget draft calls for $427,096 for the operation of the county government in 1941, approximately $3,600 more than was set up for this year.

The county debt, gradually reduced from more than $2,000,000 in 1928, will be paid off at the end of this year, the auditor said.

The additional levy which has been necessary for debt retirement and interest will be dropped from the tax books, so the payment of all the indebtedness will not release any funds for operating purposes, Wolfe pointed out.

There will still be a $30,000 relief debt, but the state will allocate funds annually for the next four years to pay it off, leaving the county without obligation to retire it, the auditor said. It was incurred by state authority.

Wolfe said the slight operating increase was requested by a number of county departments and not by any one office. It was set up with the expectation that the county's income from property taxes will increase about $10,000 in 1941.

Asks $20,000 for Relief.

A $20,000 relief fund was requested for next year which will give the county $40,000 when matched by the state on a 50-50 basis as provided in the new relief legislation passed this week at a special session of the legislature. There was no relief request in this year's budget, but the county will be forced to spend about $20,000 anyway, shifting that amount from other funds, the auditor asserted.

Wolfe predicted that there would be few, if any, cuts in the county budget requests when they go before the budget commission for final approval. He said department heads had cooperated with the commission in keeping their requests within the anticipated income for the year.

A request for $256,000 for road and bridge construction and repair was submitted by the county engineer's department. That amount is the same as this year's figure, but the final budget figure may vary slightly, depending upon the state motor vehicle and gasoline tax money that is available, Wolfe said.

4 Mansfielders Duped By Racket of Fake Salesmen

Aeronautical development being emphasized by the federal government has brought about a new racket, Mansfielders were warned by police and the Chamber of Commerce.

According to Police Chief Meade K. Bates and John G. Routzon, secretary-manager of the chamber, at least four persons in the Mansfield area have already been duped by a salesman claiming to offer aeronautical instruction to young men.

Bates said he had a warrant to file for the arrest of a man who gave the name of Walter Bismark after a telegram from a west coast firm disclosed that the man was not employed by the company.

He said the salesman's plan was to offer aeronautical training to young men, guaranteeing them a job in a west coast factory. Accepting partial payment of a $100 tuition, the man offered to pay the bus fare to California and room and board for eight weeks after which weekly payments of $5 were to be paid on the balance. Four youths made deposits with the salesman, police said.

Routzon warned young men against entering a contract with any salesmen representing any aeronautical schools and ask them to consult the chamber concerning the firm and its representatives.

Check for $5 Boosted Over Million By Bank.

SEATTLE — (AP) — A check for $1,110,005 showed up in the morning mail and left the King county clerk's staff all aflutter.

It had a different effect on bank officials who blushingly told Clerk Carroll Carter an employe had intended to make out a $5 check on a protective machine, but accidentally hit some extra keys.

ELECTROCUTED

BELLEVUE — (AP) — Charles Giddings, 42, Sandusky, lineman for the Toledo Edison company, was electrocuted yesterday while working in a high tension power line for the France Stone company two miles southwest of Bellevue.

Up and Down THE STREET

Many forces in the United States are at work to raise funds for the Red Cross, and from two different sources yesterday came a total of $51.10 to the Richland county chapter. During a sales meeting at Lumbermens Mutual Insurance company yesterday, there was a quiz bee for entertainment. Every person who missed a question had to drop a dime in a white can marked with a Red Cross symbol. This brought in $6.10. Three national magazines, Fortune, Life, and Time, are sending every one of their subscribers convenient blanks and envelopes for Red Cross contributions to their local chapters, and from this source there came $45 yesterday.

His first attempt in a long time to run down escaped reformatory inmates had a painful ending yesterday for County Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott who was wondering today how the officers do it. To help out Shelby police Marriott joined in the chase near Shelby when it was learned two Mansfield reformatory inmates had fled to that section. Armed with a pistol, the prosecutor was climbing a gate when it crashed to the ground and the whim on his face and right shoulder. It was with great difficulty that he got out of bed this morning, Marriott admitted, and his face today bore two long scratches as double reminders of his adventure.

Some kind of a record in serving a picnic dinner was set at the 27th annual Masonic picnic at South park yesterday noon when more than 1,500 persons were served in one hour. Forming in three long lines at 12 noon, the entire group of 1,500 men were served their meals by 1 p. m., according to members of the picnic staff.

Mansfield was to have a preview this afternoon of what French cities have been experiencing for the past several weeks, only on a larger scale. A contingent of 20 army cars representing the 51st signal battalion of the U. S. army at Fort Monmouth, N. J., headed west for summer maneuvers were to pass through the city. Police were asked for an escort along U. S. route 30.

OPEN ROAD

Commissioners Heed Protests on Closed Highway.

Re-opening of a one-mile section of the Greenwich Town Line road in Butler Township was ordered yesterday by the Richland county commissioners after a hearing on the proposal to re-establish the road failed to bring any protests.

The commissioners closed the road three years ago, thinking it was no longer necessary to keep it in repair, since it carried little traffic.

Several weeks ago, however, a number of property owners in the community signed a petition for re-opening of the road and commissioners then set the hearing.

DEATH ENDS DRAMATIC CAREER OF MAJ. GEN. SMEDLEY BUTLER

MAJOR GENERAL BUTLER

PHILADELPHIA —(INS)— Death today had ended the career of Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, twice decorated with the congressional medal of honor, whose 33 years as a United States marine was punctuated with dramatic episodes and heroic feats.

General Butler died late yesterday in Philadelphia naval hospital. He was 59. He had entered the hospital for a routine physical check up following a lecture tour and it was found he was suffering from an abdominal ailment.

General Butler, known as the "Fighting Quaker" had been retired from the Marine corps since 1931. During his active service he saw duty in Cuba, the Philippines, Central America, Mexico, China, the West Indies and the World war in France.

His penchant for mincing no words caused the United States to apologize to Premier Mussolini and another time brought him before a congressional investigating committee probing a charge he had been asked to head a veterans' army in revolt against the New Deal administration of President Roosevelt.

For a time he headed the police department of Philadelphia and his "house cleaning" of the city was effective but political pressure led to his resignation. He is survived by his wife, one daughter and two sons.

ACQUITTED

'Big Gang' Cohen Prepared to Return to Movies.

MONTICELLO, N. Y. — (INS) — Acquitted by a jury of the ice pick slaying of Walter Sage, alleged gunman for the Brooklyn murder syndicate, Irving "Big Gang" Cohen was ready today to return to Hollywood to resume work as a movie extra.

Cohen during the trial claimed he was innocent of the murder charge.

The state contended Cohen was the actual slayer of Sage whose body bearing 32 stab wounds, was found weighted down with a slot machine in Swan lake.

In his defense, Cohen, maintained he himself was attacked the same night Sage was slain.

RUN TO WOODS AFTER POLICE STOP FREIGHT

Trusties Escape From Farm Field; Posses Search For Them Till Dark.

Police throughout central Ohio were asked today to search for two Ohio State reformatory trusties who fled from the institution farm and then eluded Shelby police who stopped a train they had boarded in making their escape.

Supt. Arthur L. Glattke identified the fugitives as George Byers, 23, of Sandusky county, and Franke Rappe, 19, of Jackson county.

He said Byers committed Dec. 29, 1939 was serving a one to 20-year term for auto theft and Rappe received Jan. 3 was serving one to 15 years for burglary.

The pair attired in prison uniforms was missed in a field where they were working yesterday afternoon shortly after a westbound freight train had passed through the reformatory grounds, the superintendent said.

Shelby police notified of the escape, with County Prosecutor G. W. Marriott flagged down the train as it came into Shelby but the trusties fled through a field into a woods.

Guards Join Hunt.

A posse of guards hastily summoned by Glattke joined Shelby officers in the search which lasted until after dark. No trace of the pair was found.

Meanwhile Glattke this morning reported the return to the reformatory of Everett Collins, 20, Warren county, one of the three inmates who walked away from the farm on May 14.

The other two, Wilbur Gruver, 21, Richland county, and Milburn Riley, 23, Butler county, were returned from Kentucky two weeks ago after they had been captured in a stolen automobile.

Collins was returned by reformatory guards from LeBanon where he had been picked up by authorities. He was committed Oct. 27, 1939 to serve a one to 15 year term for breaking and entering.

MANCHESTER, N. H.—(INS)—Colonel Frank Knox rested today at his Manchester home as he awaited confirmation by the senate of his appointment as secretary of the navy.

The colonel refused to make any further statement than the one he issued in Chicago on hearing of his appointment to President Roosevelt's cabinet. At that time he said: "The navy knows no party and national defense is not a partisan question."

Not That It Matters

This Talk About Military Conscription Proves a Bit Puzzling to the Lay Mind

—By JANE WILLIAMS

MUSINGS of a Bewildered Femme In a Confused World: The compulsory military training bill, proposed this week by Senator Burke would require the registration of approximately 40,000,000 men between the ages of 18 and 65.

From this fantastically huge mass of registrations the government would select the men for training in order to set up a reserve army of 4,000,000. Those between the ages of 21 and 45 would be trained for army and navy service and those from 18 to 21 and from 45 to 65 would be trained for home defense.

Under this compulsory but selective draft, millions of men in all walks of life would be given eight months of training, would be paid $5 a month and traveling expenses. This plan would take several million men out of production and would leave their families without wage earners.

It is certain that some sort of compulsory military training will be set up in this country, and it is equally certain to meet with much resentment and opposition. But the fact remains that we MUST have an army and navy and we'll never get it through volunteer enlistments.

It might have other advantages than national defense, too. The discipline would be good for the "younger generation" which has been running pretty much as it pleases in late years, and it would take off miles of waistlines on the older men. If war comes they will all have decided advantages over men who are not trained, because whether they are trained or they aren't they will be drafted, you can be sure of that.

IF Senator Nye, who wants the president to retire because we are in a mess, lived in England he would carry an umbrella and belong to the Cliveden set. Nye has been preaching disarmament for years and look what's happened because of it.

COMMUNICATIONS companies over the country will be prepared for saboteurs. They will have auxiliary power in case anything "happens" to their main plants. At least one Mansfield concern has been asked to bid on production of these engines.

HAVE you ever heard this familiar alibi: "Why should we Americans contribute to Red Cross funds for people in foreign countries? They never contribute to victims of American disasters."

On the contrary "they" always contribute when we have misfortunes. The Ohio river probably doesn't mean any more to the people of China than the Yangtse river does to us, but when Ol' Man River went on a rampage in 1937 leaving thousands homeless and destitute, the people of down-trodden, poverty-stricken China sent us $30,000. Canada sent us $43,000, the little Dominican Republic sent $21,000; England, $6,000; Mexico, $3,500; Venezuela, $13,000; in fact the cry for aid that went up from Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia and other river states, brought aid from 40 foreign countries, totalling more than $134,000.

We Americans don't have a corner on humanitarianism and generosity. People the world over are pretty susceptible to these virtues.

THE women—and couples—who have written me concerning adopting French and English refugee children, can make their application directly to the Richland County Red Cross, giving references and credentials.

But this is one thing they should know: these refugee children are not for adoption and if their parents survive the war the children must be returned.

SOTTO VOCE: Being a vehement defender of Col. Lindbergh, was pleased as punch when Col. Tom Hanley of the air corps paid high tribute to the flyer. He said: "When people say that Lindbergh was just lucky when he made his solo flight to Paris back in '27, they don't know what they are talking about. Lindbergh blazed the air trails between the continents which are now in commercial use, and has contributed more to commercial aviation than any other man."

If Senator Burke's proposed draft bill goes through, taking all men between the ages of 18 and 65, wouldn't we women have a holy circus running everything in their absence? Hope the linotype operator don't make that first "n" an "l" in "running." . . .

Cried like a demned sissy over Elsie Robinson's description of Connie Boswell singing "Stormy Weather" in Chicago t'other night.

Man Who Certainly Should Know says as long as three years ago Nazi agents were coming into Mansfield to organize. . . . And that two of them contacted the wrong fellow one time and "sustained severe cuts and bruises about the face." . . .

And among the aliens who are now applying for citizenship papers was one who has voted in Mansfield for the past 15 years. When asked if he had ever been arrested, he smiled happily at thus being able to prove how thoroughly American he is and answered joyously "Oh, golly, many, many times!" . . .

RIGHT now there are two more things wrong with the government's AAA program—the weather and the war. Under the AAA this year farmers were forced to keep their corn acreages far below what they need for their own use, so that the United States can buy several million bushels from South America and thus keep up the friendly neighbor policy. But the corn may not amount to a tinker's dam because of the weather, and the rest of the world needs so much that we may not be able to buy it from South America. All of which will make corn more expensive than caviar.

But don't give it a second thought. We've got other things to worry about beside our food and its price.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—One rather merciful effect of the new film economy drive, from the point of view of the customers, may be a general shortening of the time taken to absorb what has passed for entertainment.

All the major plants, confronted with market losses, talk once again of restricting or eliminating their "B" product, concentrating on the "A" or intendedly superior pictures. The so-called "evil" of double features is under scrutiny, and there are other evidences that producers, in these dark days, wish to get back to fundamentals.

In the getting, they might well recall the screen's beginnings, when nickelodeons amassed profits by rapid audience turn-overs, and seeing a movie show was a diversion rather than a miniature career or protracted "sitzkrieg." The piling on of so-called "production values" reached a peak in the big "Wind," a peak justified by the public interest that has made it so phenomenally successful. However, the "Winds" are few and far between, and rare is the story that requires or does not suffer from excessive running time.

The added expense entailed by most "production value" stuff may be a sharp enough reminder to movie-makers of that excellent, neglected slogan, "Let's get on with the story." When you consider that such a satisfying comedy as "My Favorite Wife" unreels itself in one hour and 28 minutes, you find even less excuse for the weariness dragging out of less potent theses. And a look at Paramount's two current box-office leaders, "Buck Benny Rides Again" (one hour and 24 minutes) and "Typhoon" (one hour and eight minutes), ought to convince the doubters of brevity's virtues. Both are "A" pictures, both are keyed to the boxoffice. "Typhoon" at least has little to commend it from a strictly critical outlook. "Buck Benny" draws kindly critical acceptance and yet, even here, part of its box-office power can be attributed to quicker audience turn-over. A pleasing short picture that sends audiences out happy, to tell waiting audiences about it, obviously is a better bet than one which by sheer length puts them in a coma, sore of heart and sitting equipment—if for no other reason than that it clears the theater for new customers. The customers will wait for a good long one, but Hollywood has made enough bring-your-lunch bores to explode further entertainment-lacking "production" splurges.

When Hollywood gets on with its story, the public can get on home and to bed at a reasonable hour and be refreshed to come back for more.

Nazis Wait Answer To Hitler's Terms

Report Peace Conference Resumed In Compiegne Forest; Air Warfare Speeds Up on Wide Front

they never would quit.

Washington sources heard the bulk of the French fleet had gone over to the British, along with the tough job of servicing it.

There still was bitter fighting on the soil of France.

Strong Nazi motorized forces took the mountain of Bellegarde and pressed on to storm L'Ecluse, "Gibraltar of the Rhone," between Bellegarde and the Swiss frontier. In the Vosges area Maginot line troops were trying to cut their way out.

Military events in France were dwarfed, however, by cabinet consideration of Hitler's armistice demands.

French Cabinet Meets to Decide Armistice Question

BULLETIN

CHANCY, Swiss-French Frontier — (AP) — French sources reported today the French defenders of L'Ecluse fort, near Bellegarde, not only repulsed an attack on the mountain citadel early this afternoon, but drove the Germans out of the town of Bellegarde, five miles away.

BORDEAUX—(AP)—The French cabinet met at 10 a. m. (4 a. m., EST) today to decide whether to accept the German armistice terms.

At the start of discussion it was indicated no decision would be likely before nightfall.

Details of the German conditions were read to the cabinet last night. The members then adjourned until this morning before starting deliberations.

The government is in constant touch with its armistice delegates by special telephone.

It was reported that separate negotiations between France and Italy are under way. (21 words censored here.)

Informed sources pointed out that the decision by France on the German peace terms probably would be announced in simultaneous communiques in the two nations, the Germans perhaps giving the terms and the French the decision.

No pressure has been put on France for a quick reply, these sources said.

Military operations continued on a spotty scale. Marseilles was bombed Friday during a 40-mihute raid. An undetermined number of casualties resulted.

Fighting also continued in the Vosges area, where some Maginot line troops are attempting to battle their way out.

British Take Measures to Retain French Battle Fleet

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The British government is taking measures to see that the French fleet, second largest in Europe, does not fall into German hands if France makes peace with the reich, it was learned authoritatively today.

Ships of the French fleet, it was learned, either are putting into British held naval bases or are joining squadrons of British ships which would resist any German attempt to take them over, it was said in official quarters.

Officials here understood that the French fleet, most of which is stationed in the Mediterranean, is prepared to fight on regardless of the peace terms signed by the French government.

This news was highly welcome to American officials who had feared that the German sea power might be greatly enhanced by acquisition of the French navy, strengthening its striking power in the western world.

Officials here had no details as to the exact disposition of the various ships in the French fleet.

At the beginning of the war, it was recalled, the French fleet was placed under the British naval high command, just as the British army was placed under the direction of the French general staff.

This fact doubtless has made it easier for the British to make sure that none of France's vessels fall into German hands.

According to latest estimates available at the navy department, French sea power consists of seven battleships, two aircraft carriers, 18 cruisers, 73 destroyers and 77 submarines.

SECT STONED AT MINGO JUNCTION

Jefferson County Sheriff Warns Members to Stay Out of County.

STEUBENVILLE — New woes beset Jehovah's Witnesses, a religious sect, today.

Fifteen young men and women members, carrying on a campaign to obtain use of the Ohio State fairgrounds at Columbus for a July convention, were stoned at nearby Mingo Junction last night by a crowd incensed by the group's refusal to salute the American flag.

Sheriff's deputies rescued the group after it sought refuge from the assault in the Mingo Junction city hall. Village police sought the aid of Jefferson county authorities as the crowd grew larger and seemed intent upon forcing the sect members to kiss the flag.

At the county jail here, Sheriff Robert Bates warned the group to "remain out of Jefferson county if you are going to incite trouble." The majority of the group was from West Virginia and Pennsylvania, Bates said.

The violence broke out as the sect members were circulating petitions asking Gov. John W Bricker and the Ohio legislature to compel the Ohio State Fair association to grant the sect use of the fairgrounds. Persons in the crowd raised the question of the sect's attitude toward the flag.

John T. Brown, state director of agriculture, had said he rescinded a week ago permission for the sect's use of the state property on grounds the organization opposed saluting the flag and was anti-Catholic.

An injunction suit to prevent cancellation of the contract has been set for hearing at Columbus July 1.

MASONS STUFF THEIR TUMMIES

1,500 Gobble Up 7 Bushels of Potato Salad, 8 Bushels of Beans at Outing.

by 1 p. m. the 1,500 had managed to consume all of the food with the exception of a few baked beans, a little cottage cheese and about six loaves of bread.

Baked beans and potato salad were the largest items prepared for the picnic. In the baked beans were 175 pounds of beans, 30 pounds of bacon and 25 pounds of sugar, while four bushels of potatoes, 30 dozen of eggs, a crate of celery, eight gallons of dressing and a peck of onions were used in the potato salad.

Among the other food stuffs consumed were 150 pounds of ham, seven gallons of pickles, 30 gallons of cottage cheese, 125 loaves of bread, 150 bunches of green onions, 18 pounds of coffee and 125 cases of soft drinks.

Preparing and serving of the food was handled by a staff of Masons headed by Arlis F. Porter, and Mrs. Rhoda Fisher and Mrs. Harry Burgett.

Arrangements for the picnic were in charge of the Mystic club directors comprising Earl E. Bates, H. L. Dent, R. N. Campbell, D. A. McCullough, W. H. Barr, Carl A. Wolfarth, Tolman Burns, George H. Culler and J. E. Snyder.

A sports program was held during the remainder of the afternoon.

FRENCH FLEET HELPS BRITAIN

the new German drive will she have a chance to defeat the Nazis.

Upon these two operations largely hangs the fate of Great Britain.

While fortune has smiled on the British in the matter of the French fleet and planes, things haven't gone so well in other quarters. Some of the neutrals are beginning to touch their hats respectfully to the Fuehrer.

Rumania, one of the World war Allies and until recent months the friend of Anglo-French brotherhood, has drawn closer to Germany. King Carol has formed a new totalitarian party on Nazi lines and it is understood that the government will be of the Nazi-Fascist type.

The rest of the Balkans are sitting pretty quiet, hoping that the running dogs of war will pass them by. Powerful Turkey, master of the strategic Dardanelles and pledged to support the Allies in Mediterranean warfare not involving Russia, is guarding its neutrality in view of the French collapse.

And now Japan has decided to take a hand in the matter of British and French possessions in the southern Orient, acording to quarters close to the Tokyo government.

And finally, the Axis partners apparently intend to give Spain a place in the peace terms for services rendered. That raises another danger for England in her Mediterranean war.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"All ready, sir," he said quietly.

"Where are they?"

"Waiting in the Dicky-bird's roost."

My father's lips twitched slightly, but his manner did not change its stiffness.

"Will you please bring them over here—but not for five minutes?" he asked. "And will you make sure that no one catches sight of them in transit?"

"I'll have them here on the second, with no eye witnesses," Lillian's husband promised. "But — will you please leave the door unlocked. I may have to rush them in hurriedly, and a locked door, in that case, will be just too bad."

"The door will be unlocked," my father said, and Harry Underwood forthwith left the room. When he had gone, my father turned to Mary and Noel gazing wide-eyed at him. I saw him wince ever so slightly as he looked at them—and knew how he must dread telling them of the latest development of Jack Leslie's villainy.

"I have sent for you, Noel, and your wife," he began, "not because I must. But please let me assure you first, that while you will be shocked and astounded by my revelations, there will be no possible personal danger for you. But I wish to count upon your composure. Can't I do that?"

He had put them on their mettle. I saw both youthful heads lift, and their eyes gave him the assurance he wished, even before they spoke.

"You can count on us, sir," Noel said quietly.

"We shan't turn a hair, no matter what you tell us," Mary chimed in.

My father squared his shoulders, and went directly to the core of things.

"You know of course that Jack Leslie and his gang are besieging us," he said, and barely waited for their assenting nods before going on.

"A short time ago," he said, "I received a note from Leslie in which he admitted the possession of Queen Olga's missing emerald—"

"Oh-h!" Mary ejaculated, then clapped her hands over her mouth as a startled child might have done, while my father went on as if he had not been interrupted.

"He offered to restore them immediately upon one condition, that I turn you two over to him, and make no further inquiry as to your fate."

True to their promise, they made no sound, but their faces whitened, and I saw their hands go out to each other in an involuntary clasp.

"Before I tell you what answer I gave him," my father went on, "I want to assure you that it was meant to deceive him, and that I have no intention of keeping the pledge I gave him."

He paused for the fraction of a second and I knew that he was reluctant to voice even the false promise he had given Leslie.

"I sent word to him," he said slowly, "that I would deliver both of you up to him in return for the emeralds."

For a long instant there was silence in the room, and then Noel burst into speech.

"None of you know Leslie as I do," he said, "and he's not a fool. He knows you wouldn't give us up, and that if you say you will, you're preparing a trap for him. Please, sir, don't go anywhere near him. He's like a cobra."

"Except that he's partly insane," my father said. "Cobras keep their cold brains. He used to be one, I grant you, but not any more. And it is with the half mad cobra, who still believes his own cunning is the greatest in the world that I am going to deal."

Words forced themselves out of me.

"You, yourself, are not going to put yourself in his way, Father?"

"There will be no need," he said. "Leslie, himself, will not be present, when the exchange is made."

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, JUNE 22, 1940.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and now's a good time to check up on tires and other car equipment.

The summer vacation comes at an especially appropriate time for school children to forget anything they may have learned about European geography.

Stitch-in-time item: When mass production starts, a good gas mask can be bought for around $2.50, plus tax—but if the tax is paid now maybe the gas mask won't be needed.

Better Be Safe Than Sorry

SEVEN YEARS AGO Winston Churchill, now prime minister, trying to save a country that wouldn't listen to him then, said in the house of commons:

"Not to have an adequate air force in the present state of the world is to compromise the foundation of national freedom and independence. It is all very well to suppose that we are masters of our own actions in this country, and that this house can assemble and vote as to whether it wishes to go to war or not. If you desire to keep this privilege, which I trust you shall never lose, it is indispensable that you should have armaments in this island which will enable you to carry on your life without regard to external pressure."

Englishmen who would not listen then are sorry now. Their delay may cost them their empire and their lives.

America has been almost as remiss as England in this matter. The danger was more distant, but even less preparation has been made here. At last people are beginning to arm adequately for air defense, and hoping that Britain can hold the present masters of the air until this country is prepared.

Preparing Youths for Jobs

THE NATIONAL YOUTH ADMINISTRATION has made it possible for many young people to continue their education while earning something toward it. It is now expanding its program, wherever suitable, to include training youth for industrial jobs.

In a community where the need for skilled workers is great, the NYA is now setting up a new industrial training center. A committee representing the personnel managers of local industrial plants will advise on the types of equipment to be used, the special kinds of training to be given, the length of training schedules and the methods of selecting applicants.

The state administrator in that area hopes the center may be operated on a 24-hour-a-day basis. He regards the project as a big step forward in matching training with the actual needs of industry.

Other plans are taking shape for training workers in existing educational institutions, or outside, for work in fields in which their skill is needed and where they can be sure of jobs. If such programs are successful it seems likely they will be retained in some form as a permanent system.

Opposition To State Barriers

THE SUBJECT of interstate truck traffic is still in a controversial stage, and promises to remain so until the federal government finally moves toward smoothing out present difficulties in the field of transportation.

"If this country is to have a uniform program of preparedness," says Wilburn Cartwright of Oklahoma, chairman of the house committee on roads, "there can be no such thing as highway barriers between the states. This is no time for establishing or maintaining ports of entry between neighboring commonwealths.

All Americans used to believe and practise this doctrine, but many states have been drifting far from such an ideal in recent years.

"How can we produce materials and other necessities of a great nation," continues Congressman Cartwright, "if our own states are surrounded by walls, if motor vehicles halt their much needed loads at state lines to be checked for weight and length, perhaps delayed or refused admittance?

"Today there are 48,492 communities in this nation served only by motor vehicles. These towns and hamlets are vital to American life, for they represent a population of 7,844,509—as many people as there are in Illinois, and two and one-half times the whole population of Norway."

Upon each state, however, rests responsibility for maintenance of roadways over which freight trucks travel, and it seems quite reasonable that load limits should be established to safeguard roads against damage, and also that operators of interstate truck lines should meet a reasonable share of the cost of construction and upkeep of highways they use.

More general voluntary observance of load limits would probably result in fewer delays of truck shipments, but from the public's standpoint the most serious present problem is to prevent further encroachment of monster trucks on highways not designed for such use.

When Brakes 'Fail to Hold'

ALL TOO frequently the blame for an automobile crash is placed on brakes—with the simple explanation, "the brakes failed to hold."

Braking weakness does not develop in an instant and if "brakes fail to hold" in an emergency it is an indication they haven't been checked and adjusted when this was needed.

The stopping distance required at various speeds, and with brakes in good working order, is information available to all motorists. Making sure that brakes are properly adjusted, so as to be in readiness for use in any emergency that may arise, is a responsibility that should be recognized by every driver of a car. This is one of the chief arguments in favor of compulsory inspection of all motor vehicles at regular intervals, which is now required in a number of states.

Who Makes the Rayon?

STATISTICS often contain as many surprises as the daily news. For example, consider the figures showing the production of rayon yarn. The average American, asked suddenly what country produced the most rayon yarn, might answer the United States.

The Rayon Organon, published by the Textile Economics Bureau, tells a different story. In 1939, Germany led the world in the manufacture of this product. The German output was 27 per cent of the total. Japan was second with 24, the United States third with 17, and Italy fourth with 14 per cent.

Once more the American Spirit "turns a keen, untroubled face home to the instant need of things."

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—If you should happen to encounter, on your wanderings in New York, a man nearing 60 who has a polo mallet in one hand and the world tied to the other, his name will be Douglas G. Hertz, possibly the most bizarre human being among all the millions who call this water-girt island their home. Bizarre is scarcely the word. His record reads like something thought up by Achmed Abdullah. Listen:

BORN in California and served as captain in British army 20 years . . . was on Lusitania when it was torpedoed . . . Saw action in Gallipoli campaign . . . Managed the negro heavyweight champion Jack Johnson . . . Dropped a fortune trying to organize a Pan-American oil cartel . . . Acted in silent movies opposite Marguerite Clark . . . Has raced turtles in Miami and pigs in Los Angeles . . . Introduced dog racing to Staten Island . . . Recently completed deal with Turkish army for 20,000 donkeys . . . Tried to buy famous Tombs prison and turn it into a wax museum . . . Drinks only champagne for breakfast . . . Dines chiefly on fowl . . . Is president of a music publishing firm and owns a swing band . . . Is now producing a Latin-American film on Long Island . . . Is a real estate operator and owns the Pegasus Polo and Hunt club at Rockleigh, New Jersey . . . Club has sanctuary for famous old mares and stallions which have made names for themselves in theatrical work . . . One of these was Anna, a mare who carried the late Rudolf Valentino through "The Sheik." Anna died there recently and was interred with honors. Anna also was famous as an opera star . . . Owns a night club named after the horse Sun Beau, a great money winner in his time . . . Great love just now is polo . . . Says he will bring the son of the late Will Rogers and his polo team east soon to compete at Pegasus . . . Dreams of a vast chain of polo fields from coast to coast, "so polo can become the average man's pleasure rather than the rich man's fun."

MR. HERTZ has been fondly dubbed "Barnum on Horseback" by his press agents. They like to refer to him as "a cosmopolite Paul Bunyan," which no doubt he is. Certainly at 60 he defies analysis . . . He says he sleeps only three or four hours out of 24 and consumes strong spirits at a rate of two quarts daily. His arena at Pegasus is said to be the largest indoor arena for rodeo and polo matches on earth . . . Actually it is a vast airplane hangar which Mr. Hertz transferred to Rockleigh from Floyd Bennett Field. "My losses," he admits casually, "are about 10 grand a month, but then what's 10 grand when you're having fun?"

This statement perhaps explains him better than anything anyone else could say.

HERITAGE OF THE DESERT

Must Unchain Private Enterprise

By WALTER E. SPAHR
Professor of Economics, New York University.

REPRESENTATIVE DITTER of Pennsylvania, on June 4, made some remarks in congress on a very vital subject which should be fully appreciated by the American people. Unfortunately only excerpts of this excellent address can be given. He said:

"The emergency legislation now before congress would authorize the president in his uncontrolled discretion to use public funds to finance the building or expansion of plant and the supply of equipment, for the manufacture of airplanes, airplane engines, and other war materials required to meet the needs of the Nation's special defense program.

"Apparently it is being assumed by the supporters of this emergency legislation that private initiative and private enterprise in America is moribund, or dead, and that the expansion of plant and equipment needed for the manufacture of war equipment cannot be financed except through government aid or by government funds.

"This assumption is, in essence, identical with the assumptions contained in the testimony spread on the record before the Temporary National Economic Committee by advocates of a collectivist economy.

"The . . . Brookings Institution at Washington, D. C., has just published a study entitled 'Capital Expansion, Employment, and Economic Stability,' exposing through economic research the fallacy of the collectivist contention that private caiptal and free enterprise cannot revitalize American industry and bring it to any volume of productivity required to meet the Nation's needs, . . .

"Unquestioning surrender to the conquests of totalitarianism at home is an unnecessary heavy price to pay for protection against the threats and dangers which come from the conquests of totalitarianism in Europe.

"It is a plain fact that no American manufacturer of airplanes, airplane engines, or other material of war needs to turn to the United States Government for funds to finance expansion of plant and equipment. Private capital brought these industries into being. It has financed all of their needs up to now and it is ready and eager to finance all of the future needs of these industries. It desires only to be given the opportunity to do so.

"American institutions must be protected against totalitarianism from within as well as from abroad. . . .

"The fact is that most manufacturers of airplanes, airplane engines and related war materials already have as much or more capital than they can employ . . . But because of the Healey-Walsh Act, the Wages and Hours Act, many airplane manufacturing plants are working only five days a week. . . . There is a shortage of skilled mechanics. . . . Tax laws, as they stand, are a serious obstacle retarding the building of such additional plant as may be necessary to meet the war emergency. . . .

There are certain obstacles created by other legislation which stand in the way of private financing in the investment markets. Because of these impediments, Douglas Aircraft Co. in 1939 went to the Netherlands market in Amsterdam and Rotterdam to obtain approximately $1,800,000 of new capital. It did this not because private investors and private enterprise in the United States were unwilling to supply the needed funds, but because Douglas Aircraft Co did not wish to submit to the inconvenience, expense, and delay occasioned by the requirements of the Securities Act of 1933.

"If it is sincerely desired to permit American industry to gain ready access to supplies of capital through the private investment market so as to facilitate the carrying out of the defense program, immediate action hsould be taken to simplify the procedure of registration and to eliminate the delays imposed by the Securities Act of 1933.

"The Brookings Institution, in its study just published, recommends various changes in the Securities Act including a recommendation that the waiting period imposed by the 1933 act should be materially shortened.

"Freed from unnecessary trammels of the sort to which the Brookings Institute and others have called attention, the private investment market of the United States would be fully competent to respond promptly and effectively to the capital needs of American industry.

"The United States cannot efficiently arm herself for the fight against totalitarianism unless she frees for effective action the energies and initiative of free enterprise through which she achieved greatness. To confer unnecessary broad powers on a highly centralized government while leaving private enterprise to struggle under the burdens of unnecessary restrictive laws will expose the national economy to dangers from within as great as those which threaten it from outside our borders."

Listen, World!

The Dust Bowl's Coming Back—But the Joads Aren't.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I WENT to see the film version of "Grapes of Wrath" the other night, having long since read and protested against the book. Not that I don't realize the misery of that tragic trek, but why blame California for that misery? Or why treat the labor agitation in California as an unique phenomenon? Many of the homeless in that same exodus had previously visited Arkansas and Louisiana and there received as little as 16 cents per day; yet no one started a national uproar over Arkansas or Louisiana.

However, there's no denying that, at heart, both film and book are great social documents and if they awaken us to the plight of our underprivileged brothers, we must be grateful for them, no matter whose toes they step on.

The film, particularly, wrings the heart—the pathos of those withered faces . . . the grim determination in their faded eyes . . . the ghastly desolation of the homes they'd left behind. I'd seen that desolation myself, a few years since. Drab sky, dun earth, without a blade of grass; a crumbling shack . . . a starving, ribridged cow . . . and, in the distance, a black, twisting mass that moved and swelled. Ten minutes after we'd passed that ghostly ranch, that mass had caught up with the train, and the wind was upon us, sifting like a sand-blast through every crack, blinding and choking us.

Now four years had passed and I was taking the same trail eastward again—in incredible amazement. The porter had warned me—told me how the government had already changed the Dust Bowl, "brought it back" with its tree plantings, its instructions against soil erosion. And now I was seeing that change for myself, but still I could hardly believe.

Where the scorched bones and scared flesh of the soil had lain stark, four years ago, the grass now rippled bright to far horizons, cloud shadows trailing long across its silvery blades, and, rising in a ceaseless, deep, triumphant roar, the chorus of the "cats."

The Dust Bowl coming back! But that doesn't necessarily mean that the Joads will come back, or that they could make good if they did. And those caterpillars are the reason. For the Joads didn't leave merely because the winds were cruel and the bankers crueler. They left because a new order had come and they couldn't adjust themselves to it. Even if they could have obtained all the loans they needed, they still would have been unable to cope with the situation for they were part of something that has passed, and will not come again.

The Joads were the symbol of small, inefficient, individual land owners. The day of such individual holdings is almost over, just as the day of the large, ruthless, private moneply is almost done. Public Opinion has rolled as ruthlessly over such selfish monoply as the big "cat" rolled over the old Joad shack.

That "cat"—that regiment of "cats"—was inevitable. No single individual can any longer work one of those vast Western holdings. It takes many men, each a specialist in his own line. Many farms put together in one unit . . . many men working together, splitting the profit. Combination and co-operation, that's the new order of this 20th Century industrial world.

The young "cat" driver tried to make Pa Joad see all this, but Pa Joad wouldn't see. He was as stubborn about accepting a new order of things as some pampered old plutocrat on Park Avenue would be. And therein lies another surprising discovery. It's a long distance from a pent house on Park Avenue to a wretched shack in the Dust Bowl—but often there's no difference at all between the mental attitudes of the two men who inhabit them! Rich man and poor man can be equally stubborn, stupid and selfish when it comes to blocking the wheels of progress. And can pay for it equally in loss, loneliness and blind resentment.

A NEW ERA HAS COME. THERE IS NOTHING ABNORMAL ABOUT ITS COMING AS THE CAVE MAN PASSED FROM HIS CAVE . . . AS THE TENT-DWELLER MOVED INTO A HOUSE . . . SO THE OLD HANDWORKERS MUST LAY THEIR SIMPLE TOOLS ASIDE AND ACCEPT THE MACHINE AGE WITH ALL ITS COMPLEXITIES. IT IS INEVITABLE.

A NEW ERA HAS COME, AND ALL THOSE WHO CAN'T OR WON'T MOVE WITH IT ARE DOOMED TO BE JOADS FOR KEEPS.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

Small Beauty.

You know the beauty of small things
And this enriches you.
You find in little kindly acts
Grace that gives peace its due.

You see in morning light the charm
That opens any day
With joy. Your simple words of praise
Are more than an array

Of words by many said; you find
Dreams in small lovely things
Of living and because of that
For you the whole world sings.

One-Minute Test

1. What was the entire Pacific northwest called at the time it was acquired by the United States?
2. What are the three chief political parties of Great Britain?
3. What is a fiscal year?

Words of Wisdom

Philosophy alone makes the mind invincible, and places us out of the reach of fortune, so that her arrows fall short of us.—Seneca.

Hints on Etiquette

If you consider that you have been sold unsatisfactory goods and you feel abused, do not go to the shop where they were bought in a towering rage. The affair will be much more satisfactorily adjusted if you approach the clerks or managers in a courteous manner, assuming that they did not mean to cheat you and will make the matter good.

One-Minute Test Answers

1. The Oregon country.
2. Conservative, Labor and Liberal.
3. The time between one annual time of settlement or balancing of accounts and another.

Daily Bible Thought

For God is not unrighteous to forget your work and labour of love, which ye have shewed toward his name, in that you have ministered to the saints, do minister.—Hebrews 6:10.

Summary of Week's Happenings

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

SURPRISE move of the week, as the United States went forward in its big defensive program, was President Roosevelt's appointment of two Republicans—Col. Frank Knox and Henry L. Stimson, to the cabinet posts of secretary of navy and secretary of war.

Coming on the eve of the Republican national convention in Philadelphia next week, GOP stalwarts received the news with mixed emotions and John D. M. Hamilton, Republican national chairman, said Knox and Stimson could no longer be regarded as speaking for the Republican party. In some quarters belief was expressed that these appointments meant that Roosevelt would not be a third-term candidate.

Earlier in the week the president spoke up to say he believed government service (military, in factories, or "maintaining necessary conservation") eventually would be required of every American boy. The president scoffed at the suggestion that any Hitler pledges would keep the German dictator from invading the Western hemisphere.

He signed into law measures providing for (1) automatic promotion of army officers; (2) opening U. S. arsenals and shipyards to Latin American orders; (3) a navy air force of 10,000 planes, 16,000 pilots —and a fleet bigger by 21 warships, 22 auxiliary vessels.

In the middle of the week, there was introduced into congress the administration's proposed $1,200,000,000 naval expansion program to provide 84 additional warships, and make the U. S. fleet the biggest and most powerful ever set afloat.

Tax on Profits.

The senate unanimously voted that the United States would not acquiesce in the transfer of any colonies in the Western hemisphere as a result of Europe's war. And it wrote into the defense tax bill an amendment to impose a stiff schedule of excess profits taxes on corporations. The taxes would raise about $450,000,000 annually.

The war department planned for (1) two new streamlined army divisions—today we haven't one that compares with a German Panzer division; (2) the training of 10,600 airmen annually. A new unit of the Wright plant at Paterson, N. J., capable eventually of producing 1,000 plane engines a month, was dedicated.

American Opinions.

Voices were raised. Among them:—

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh: "There is still very little understanding of what our entrance into the war would mean. . . . If we decide to fight . . . the United States must prepare for war for many years to come, and on a scale unprecedented in all history."

Senator Wheeler: "There has been terrific propaganda from two sources to get us in the war. They are the British government and Wall Street. Full page advertisements are being printed at their direction, and congress should know who is paying for the ads, and the people should know where they originate."

At Home

World of Tomorrow?

A German victory in Europe will result in division of the world into four great spheres of economic and political influence, Secretary Wallace predicted this week. The spheres, in the order of their power:

1. German-controlled areas of Europe and Africa, plus Asiatic territories which once were Allied colonies ("Germany will have the complete resources of the European and African continents and a slave population of 400,000,000 people");
2. North and South America (which Hitler will regard as an "eventual happy hunting ground") with possibly Australia and New Zealand included;
3. Soviet Russia;
4. Japan.

To meet the threat, he said, "the magnetic current of American good will, good trade, understanding, culture, language and travel should run more largely north and south rather than east and west."

Suggested Reading.

The Columbia University Press polled American readers recently on the 10 books, above all others, that should be in a President's library. The Bible was first, by a narrow margin. Here's the list:

The Bible.
"The Grapes of Wrath," by John Steinbeck.
"Mein Kampf," by A. Hitler.
"The Rise of American Civilization," by Charles and Mary Beard.
"Abraham Lincoln," by Carl Sandburg.
"Essays," by Ralph Waldo Emerson.
"Capital," by Karl Marx.
"The Republic," by Plato.
Shakespeare's works.
"Leaves of Grass," by Walt Whitman.

Aerial Collisions.

Four of America's twin-motored bombers were flying in practice V-formation over the outskirts of New York City near Mitchel field as the signal came to change formation. When one ship tried to pass under another, their wings locked. Both crashed to the ground. All the 11 men in the two ships were killed.

And two students learning to fly near the municipal airport of Tulsa, Okla., crashed in midair on the same day (Monday). Both students and an instructor were killed.

June and Jobs.

To the thousands of students now holding diplomas but no jobs, Northwestern University's vocational expert offers this advice: "Enter one of the fields which research has shown are growing."

Among the growing fields she lists (1) industrial research, which, she asserts, has created wholly new industries such as the making of plastics, (2) machine operation in clerical work ("today we need no bookkeepers, but persons who can operate machines which will keep the books") (3) trucking, (4) personnel work, (5) government employment.

Abroad

Girds for Invasion.

Britain will fight on said Prime Minister Churchill, "until the curse of Hitler is lifted from the brows of mankind." Sir Nevile Henderson, former ambassador to Berlin, stated:

"Hitler can only defeat the British by bombing us into submission, by successfully invading our country, or by starving us through a blockade. I think he will try all three."

Churchill thought the bombing attack would come first: Herr Hitler wouldn't order an invasion until Britain's air force had been smashed, he figured.

For such an invasion, Britons heard that Nazis planned to move about 175,000 troops across the channel in two nights and a day, by parachute and submarine. Thousands of air transports would drop troops along the English coast; and 100 submarines would bring supplies, and more men. At least 60 of the U-boats were said to be designed to transport 400 fully-equipped men apiece.

To meet such an invasion, Churchill said Britain had 1,250,000 fully-armed troops, plus a half-million local defense volunteers. Also, "we have a great system of minefields," he added.

As for a campaign to starve out the British, islanders snort that their big navy will be able to keep the sea lanes open. In contrast, they say, the Nazi machine cannot hold together long enough to win a war of attrition.

Quotes

Arthur T. Robb editor of Editor and Publisher: "The major fault in American democracy today is our widespread political and economic illiteracy."

Sen. Millard E. Tydings: "Easy living and the days of spending are gone—they died on the battlefields of France."

People

Vargas Misunderstood.

President Getulio Vargas of Brazil stated, last week, that "Vigorous peoples fit for life must follow the route of their aspirations." Though the state department seemed unperturbed, Security Administrator McNutt quoted Vargas to demonstrate that democracy was being libeled by men "incapable of grasping" its meaning.

So Vargas cabled Washington, this week, that his speech could "in no sense be regarded as contradictory" to the president's denunciation of Italy and pledge of aid to the Allies. He praised FDR and said Brazil would "not fail him in loyalty."

Pastor Meets Competition.

"If you are contemplating a golf game, an automobile or fishing trip, feel free to come in togs suited for these outings," the Rev. George Parkins told a startled Presbyterian congregation in Columbus, suburbs. He even inaugurated a special 7 a. m. service for those anxious to get off to an early start on Sundays.

Science

I. Q. Tests for Autoists.

A Detroit doctor subjected traffic violators to mental tests, and found many of them to be dimwits. Of the mental lightweight he said, "No matter how well he may react mechanically, his judgment in an emergency is sure to be faulty." The doctor urged—before the American Medical Association meeting in New York—that all license applicants be given I.Q. tests.

Cycling for Security.

"One of the great errors of the day," says Dr. Paul White, famed Boston heart specialist, "is the failure to take regular exercise." He bemoans the "excessive use" of motor cars. This week he saw a chance for Americans to improve both their health and their defenses: turn from motoring to "walking and cycling." This would permit the automotive industry to concentrate on manufacturing planes and armored vehicles, he figured.

In Short

Paid: Finland's annual war debt payment of $159,398, thought that country, in the future, may take advantage of a proposal passed by congress to relieve her of payments for a 10-year period.

Arrested: Eleven Germans in Uruguay on charges of plotting to overthrow the government. Uruguayan authorities said they had traced the Nazi activities directly to the German minister.

Disapproved: Emphatically, the bill to deport Harry Bridges, West Coast CIO leader, by Attorney General Jackson. He said it would be the first time in 150 years that America had deported a man without a hearing. It was passed by the house.

Died: Dubose Heyward, author of such novels of Negro life as "Mamba's Daughters."

FORMAL CEREMONY READ AT ST. PETER'S

Miss Mary Elizabeth Jurgens, Charles Frederick Eaton Exchange Vows Early Today; Leave on Northern Trip.

BEFORE an altar banked with palms, ferns and two large beauty baskets of gladoli at the St. Peter's Catholic church at 9:30 this morning Msgr. R. C. Goebel read the nuptial mass which united in marriage Miss Mary Elizabeth Jurgens and Charles Frederick Eaton.

Preceding the ceremony Raymond Baum, church organist, played a 15 minute recital from the works of Bohm. The processional and recessional were "Grand Triumphal March" by Alex Guilmant, and "Recessional" by Stern. Other selections included the music for the mass from the Gregorian chants of the church in the 16th century, "Panis Angelicus" by Cesar Frank and "Melody in G" by Guilmant.

Miss Jurgens, who was given in marriage by her father, was attired in a dress of deep ivory slipper satin made with a full formal train. The skirt, which was cut in the full drindl style, was attached to a tightly shirred basque blouse, cut with a sweetheart neckline and long, tight sleeves.

The bride's veil was made in a double circular cap of ivory illusion attached to a beaded juliet cap. She wore this fingertip veil in the virgin style. With her costume Miss Jurgens carried a shower bouquet of white Swansonia roses and carnations.

She was attended by Mr. Eaton's sister, Mrs. Clemens Wehinger, as matron of honor. Schedule of Events

SUNDAY

Jolly Times club—North Lake park, family picnic.

U-Name-It club—Mrs. Jack Flaharty, 343 Grace street, hostess.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, June 23.

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE is read as a rather unprogressive and discouraging one unless the major activities be centered on group action and in promoting plans and projects for the common good. Otherwise there may be obstacles, disappointments and postponements, with elders and superiors rather inimical.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a rather routine year in which it may be difficult to make much progress. The most gratifying results will be attained in concerted effort with groups or bodies organized for the advancement of the social, spiritual and physical well-being of the community. Safeguard the health.

For Monday, June 24.

MONDAY'S ASTROLOGICAL forecast is for rather conflicting situations. While the mental faculties will be attuned to fresh ideas, innovations and all manner of adventurous schemes, yet these are under an adverse aspect, discouraging change, novelty and out-of-the-routine ambitions. It would be well in these circumstances to develop ideas, make plans and lay the ground for future constructive action. The young may find social or romantic compensations on this day.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year in which the mind is pitched to fine creative heights and ambitions in some out-of-the-ordinary field of endeavor. It will be inventive, scientific, prone to dig and delve in unknown pastures.

CHAPTER VII

"Mr. King likes to tease, Monty, don't you think?" Rosemary tried to save face for him. "I bet the horse wouldn't care whether it wore a blanket or not."

"The horse would know if it didn't have one, never fear!" Bob snapped back, in a deep voice. "But never mind, never mind! Let's get going."

With a disdainful air of efficiency, Bob dismounted and removed the saddle from Monty's horse, plopped on a heavy woolen fabric woven by Indians and showing intricate red and gray designs, then put the saddle on top of that. He buckled the cinch, his fine muscles working smoothly and efficiently. When the horse swelled up, Bob put his knee against its side, gave a sudden pressure that caused the animal to exhale.

"Now, my hearty!" he bragged, tightening the cinch securely. "Thought you'd fool the old maestro, eh? But you're a smart horse." He gave the animal a friendly slap and turned to Monty. "Okay, professor climb aboard and let's go!"

Monty had made no further move to aid him. In fact, he had just stood watching, quite unconsciously mopping his brow with a pocket handkerchief. The look of futility had deepened.

"I, ah—I say—it—the fact is, Mr. King, and Rosemary, I believe it would be better if I returned to my room. I have a headache that is quite annoying, so that I should be poor company anyway, and—"

"Yeah?" Bob controlled a quick grin, looked sedately at the professor. "Sure, better take care yourself. Try an aspirin."

Bob remounted and started out of the corral, touching Rosemary's horse to urge it along. And Rosemary could think of nothing whatsoever to say or do, except to go along obediently. She wished fervently for some way to lesson Monty's obvious misery.

"Ride on out later if you feel better," she finally called, waving a courteous farewell.

Monty watched them silently. For a tantalizing moment they were silhouetted on a hilltop two hundred yards away, and to him they appeared to lean together in a delicate, happy sort of intimacy.

Deep despair engulfed him. A headache! . . . Men don't have headaches! At least not normal, virile men, with pride in themselves and desire in their hearts. This terrible realization struck him with misery anew. Why had he been so utterly panicky during an otherwise trivial incident before a pretty girl? He was not in love with her, nor she with him. What difference did it all make?

And yet—Rosemary Taylor was a symbol. A highly significant symbol of lovely, youthful womanhood. Somehow she had stirred Dr. Montgomery as no other feminine creature had ever done. Stripped his soul and rasped it and bade it reach out and do things it had never done before. It was vague, but positive; confusing, but irresistible.

The very scholarly analysis of the situation was beginning to interest him (and so lessen the pink embarrassment he felt) when he reached his boarding place again. On the porch there his introspective thoughts were interrupted. A man was waiting, a fine looking man past middle age. He arose to greet Monty.

"Dr. Montgomery?" said he, in hearty warmth. "I am Dr. Lovett, the president of Flagstaff college, and I have just learned that you were here. I know you by reputation, sir, and I came at once to ask if we might present you to our college and community in a public address. May we just sit down a moment and talk?"

"Mailman, Honey."

Sue McKee called that to her friend, Rosemary. The R. F. D. postman arrived at the trading post rather early each morning, but Sue had come ahead of him today.

She took the mail—some store letters and a Flagstaff newspaper—inside to Rosemary. Together they opened the paper there, and almost at once both girls exclaimed in surprise.

"Look!" Rosemary beamed. "It's Monty!"

"Sure enough!" murmured Sue.

It was Monty in a serious pose, reflecting dignity and definite good looks. It was in fact a trifle flattering to him. The picture was two columns wide and on page one, beside a news story about him. All of which meant that the editor in the somewhat small mountain city had attached considerable importance to the news.

"Archibald Montgomery, Ph. D., on summer leave from the faculty of Yale university in order to study archaeology in northern Arizona," read the news item, "will be presented next Thursday evening in a public lecture at the Flagstaff College Outdoor theater.

"Dr. Montgomery, although a young man, is recognized as one of America's outstanding archaeologists and students of ancient history, and in sponsoring his appearance here the college authorities feel—"

There was half a colum more of it, given largely to an outline of Dr. Montgomery's scholarly career and quoting the local college president in high praise of him. The girls read all of it avidly.

"Gee!" Sue breathed.

"He's grand, really," Rosemary said. "I'm so glad for him."

"It is an honor."

"Sure. He—he must be important in his field. Somebody!"

She laughed. "Are you implying that you thought he wasn't anybody?"

"Goodness, no, Sue! I mean—well, Monty's shy, and—"

"I know. Come on, if I'm to help you with your work."

Sue had volunteered to help Rosemary with an interior decoration job. Rosemary had decided, wisely, that if she must run the isolated trading post for a while she should also be economical and live on the premises. Motoring the 40 miles out from Flagstaff each day was a costly nuisance.

"Pola — that's Walpi Tom's squaw—can take care of you," Sue had explained. "She cooks well. Old Dunc Coulter's living quarters are upstairs over the store, a large room and bath. We'll fix 'em up, huh?"

It had been sweet of Sue to suggest it, and to help. Rosemary admitted her need of guidance in dressing up the place.

There was a homemade bed made of skinned pine saplings notched together and tied with rawhide thongs. It was a queer place, but the strings were good and the mattress almost brand-new.

"You can buy a cheap bedstead, city style," Sue ventured, "but this is kind of in keeping with—"

"I love it!" Rosemary declared. "It's picturesque. Did old Duncan make it himself?"

"Yes. I helped him."

"You would, Sue! You're a darling."

"I've sewed the window curtains for you on mother's machine. They're in this bundle," Sue started unwrapping.

They were linen curtains of light gray-tan, printed with a novel pattern of Indian design in brown. There were drawings of sunsets, broken arrows, eccentric horses, half-moons and quarter-moons, thunderbirds, katchinas, mystic mazes and all manner of things which seemed commonplace to Sue but which Rosemary could not interpret at all. The girls spent half an hour deciphering them before hanging the cloth.

They had already coerced Walpi Tom into staining the pine floor with a light varnish, so as to hold the natural color and keep it clean. This made an ideal background for four of the prettiest Navajo rugs brought up from the store.

"They never wear out," Sue explained. "The best of wool is in them, and all made by hand. These have beautiful colorings."

"They certainly don't look like—well, New York."

"No."

"But I'm not in New York now."

"No."

"And I'm not sorry, Sue, so there!"

"You're beig converted. You'll love it here after you get used to us. Everybody does."

"Everybody's nice."

"Yes."

Sue was busy smoothing sheets and blankets on the bed, covering it with a homemade quilt in sunburst colors.

"Mother sewed the designs and four of her friends helped her quilt it," Sue explained. "Father suggested the sunburst idea."

"Sue! I can't take it. It's precious!"

"You'll take it. Mother's feelings would be hurt."

"Oh, Gee, Susie! I—I didn't know people quilted any more. Like this. Gee!"

"They don't, much. Mother's mother taught her. I'm learning. I like to be a little old-fashioned."

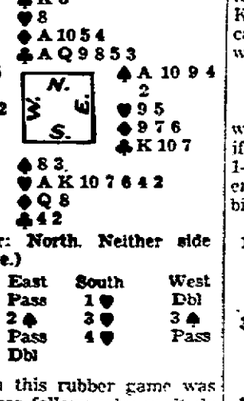
"The Authority on Authorities"

FAVOR THE SURE THING

AS BETWEEN a sure thing and a risk, there is no argument. That is, unless there is something extra which might possibly be gained by means of the risk which could not be obtained by the sure thing. Otherwise the staking of a lucky chance as against a certainty is merely unsoundness, or what sporting men call "sucker stuff."



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1♣	Pass	1♥	Dbl
2♣	2♠	3♥	3♠
4♦	Pass	4♥	Pass
Pass	Dbl

West in this rubber game was one of those fellows who can't do the obvious thing if he is able to think of something else. His double on the first round he figured to be perfectly safe because he had four cards each in the two unbid suits. It never occurred to him that his informative double might cause his partner later to make a penalty double, counting on him for some real strength.

It happened, by the way, that the 3-Spades which West bid could be set a couple of tricks by perfect defense. But this time his lucky star was with him. He even botched up the defensive play and still got a few points for setting the heart contract, though he should have set it two tricks instead of one.

West led the spade Q to the K and A, then overtook the spade 10 with the J—for some reason or no reason. Deciding his partner might have the diamond Q, he made the fearful lead of the diamond 2. South won and thereafter lost only two more tricks, one in clubs and one in hearts, so was down one.

A safe lead to the third trick, with no such risky guess, would have been the trump Q, unless, of course, South had the club K. But would East have doubled on only the spade A and diamond Q? Wasn't he, a sound player, absolutely sure to have either the club K or a trump honor? In either case a guess in the diamond suit was an unnecessary hazard.

Your Week-End Lesson.

What would you bid, as East, with each of the following hands, if South made a dealer's bid of 1-Diamond and the next two players passed, West passed and North bid 1-Heart?

BOARD SEEKS NEW TEACHER

Home Economics Instructor Turns Down Job at Crestline.

CRESTLINE—A special meeting of the board of education was called to act on the hiring of a home economics teacher. The board recently selected Miss Wealthy J. Bish of Marion for the position as a successor to Miss Ruth Patterson, but Miss Bish returned the contract, having decided to remain at Dola. The matter of selecting a teacher has now been left in the hands of Supt. R. B. Smith and Principal A. Remy.

The board will take action when a suitable applicant has been secured.

Roscoe Baker of Buffalo, O., has been hired by the board to teach on the high school staff.

The addition of another teacher was explained by reason of the local schools being warned by the North Central association the past two years that the high school was overloaded.

Mr. Baker received his masters degree at Ohio State university and taught a number of years at Buffalo, also coaching athletics. He left Buffalo to go to England to study and was forced to return sooner than anticipated when war conditions made it necessary for U. S. citizens to leave

Braves Seeking New Pitchers After Beating

Angaran, Arnold Fail to Click as Tiffin Chalks Up 10 to 8 Victory.

SEARCHING frantically for additional pitching strength, the Mansfield Braves today find themselves another full game behind the pace-makers in the Ohio State league race after dropping a 10 to 8 verdict to the Mudhens at Tiffin last night.

Mansfield will endeavor to return to the win column against Tiffin at the Fairground at 8:15 p. m. today and Manager Dewey Stover will probably send Alex Radomuis to the hill.

Tiffin won the tilt last night, but the hard-hitting Braves gave them a scare before the final out was made. The Mudhens were leading by a 5 to 1 score going into the seventh when Mansfield pushed over seven tallies to take the advantage.

As soon as the Braves forged ahead Stover sent Bob Arnold to the hill in an effort to stop the Tiffin outfit which is threatening to overtake the Braves in the standings.

He couldn't turn the trick and the Munhens tallied three times in their half of the big inning and put the game on ice with two more in the eighth.

Eatilo Angaran started for the Braves last night and Tiffin found him for six hits before Stover batted for him in the seventh. Tiffin secured one more hit than Mansfield, 9 to 8, but three of them were home runs and two others were doubles. Mansfield's eight bingles were singles.

Walt McHugh went the route for Tiffin and outside of the seventh held the Braves under control. Gene Woodlin led Mansfield at the plate with three singles.

Pilot Stover sent out a call for pitchers and already had a new twirler in camp today. He is Paul Drewek, a righthander from Flint in the Michigan State league. He might be Stover's selection to face Tiffin tonight.

* * *

Findlay increased its lead over Mansfield to six games by beating Fostoria, 7 to 4, while Lima kept pace with the leaders with a thrilling 9 to 8 win over Fremont.

Blues Score 11-0 Victory

Blast Tex Hughson Off Hill In Four Innings.

(By Associated Press)

When the pace-setting Kansas City Blues begin teeing off on an opposing American association pitcher, they're not particular who it is.

Louisville tossed young Tex Hughson at the Blues last night in their series opener, but he failed to last four innings. Hughson is the lad for whom Pittsburgh recently bid $50,000. Kansas City collected two runs in the first and two more in the third. The final score was 11 to 0. Don Hendrickson scattering eight hits to the Colonels as the Blues protected their three-game lead over Minneapolis.

* * *

Bill Swift, veteran of 13 years in baseball who won 91 games during his eight years with Pittsburgh mowed Columbus down with one hit last night as St. Paul won, 1-0.

Dixie Walker's single in the seventh ruined Swift's chance of a no-hitter.

* * *

Indianapolis dropped its 12th straight decision, to Milwaukee 5 to 1, in a game abbreviated to five innings by rain. Minneapolis defeated Toledo, 6 to 5, in 10 innings.

Reds Bank on Turner To Put on Brakes

NEW YORK —(AP)— The Cincinnati Reds today counted on Jim Turner to stop their reverse slide down the pennant trail by putting on the brakes against the Giants.

Turner has an unimpressive 3-3 record but has come through several times in the pinches. He was pitted against Bill Lohrman, seeking his seventh mound victory for the New Yorkers.

The Giants steamed into second place yesterday with a 4-3 defeat of the Rhinelanders, who dropped back into third position. Meantime, the rough-riding Dodgers plastered the Pirates 10-8 to cement their grip on the lead.

Big Paul Derringer breezed along toward his seventh straight victory for the Reds until the sixth inning when the Giants got his number. Babe Young and Harry Danning singled and Mel Ott smashed a double into rightfield, scoring both. Bill Judges singled Ott home to tie the score. The Giants got the winning run in the eighth after Frank McCormick dropped a throw.

The error let Bob reach first. Young sacrificed, Ott was passed and Jurges singled the run across.

Up to the sixth Derringer had kept the Giants shut out on two hits while his teammates scored three runs off Harry Gumbert. Gumbert settled down to pitch hitless ball for the last four frames, holding the Reds to six altogether.

* * *

Cincinnati scored a run on two hits and two errors in the second inning. Frank McCormick singled and went to second on an overthrow at first Jurges, fielding Ernie Lombardi's grounder, hit McCormick with the throw and he was safe at third, coming home on Harry Craft's single.

* * *

Singles by Derringer and Bill Werber, a wild pitch and Lonnie Frey's double accounted for the other two.

Mansfielders Set for Golf Tourney Today

11 Shotmakers Seek Honors In Public Links Meet at Firestone Course.

AKRON —(AP)— Two days of dawn-to-dusk golfing opened today with more than 250 men and about 75 women vieing for Ohio's 1940 Public Links championships.

Eleven Mansfield shotmakers are in Akron with their eyes set on the championship. Topping the Mansfield list is Joe Mayer, leading threat, who finished third in the meet last year.

The Firestone course was the scene of the men's 72-hole medal play competition. Added to the gruelling 36 holes a day was the burden of dethroning Ken Peterson of Dayton, who took the 1939 title with 11 strokes under par and a margin of 17 from his closest rival.

At the Maplecrest club, it was a wide open race for the women, whose 1939 queen, Miss Neoma Copic of Toledo, abdicated to join a private club. Thelma Linster is the only Mansfield entry at Maplecrest.

In the early-entry list, Al Leach of Cleveland, 1938 national public links champion, headed a Cleveland delegation of 36. Toledo entered 14, Mansfield and Dayton 12 each, and Columbus six, with other sharpshooters present from Youngstown, Cincinnati, Steubenville and Warren.

With the Veterans of Foreign wars in state convention here, lodgings were at a premium, and many of the publinks contestants were quartered in rooming houses and tourist camps.

* * *

Monday night the State Public Links association is to elect officers, while course operators make plans for a state-wide enhancement of "pay-as-you-play" golf.

Bell's Home Run Enables Tribe To Add to Lead

Indians Now Two Full Games Ahead of Red Sox Following 7 to 4 Triumph.

By JUDSON BAILEY, Associated Press Sports Writer.

THE CLEVELAND INDIANS are like a rowdy family that quarrels continually in its own circle but gangs up unanimously against every outsider.

Everybody in baseball expected the Tribe would come apart after the boys had their fuss with Manager Ossie Vitt. But they are still on the American league warpath today with six consecutive scalpings to their credit, including a 7-4 prize from the Boston Red Sox in the first game of their crucial series yesterday. This and that kind of a record can't be called cracking.

The Indians won under pressure from the Red Sox. The Sockers slugged Lefty Al Milnar for ten hits, one of them a home run in the third inning by Ted Williams with two on and another, Jimmie Foxx's 17th home run in the eighth.

But Cleveland, held to eight hits by Jack Wilson, kept coming and in the last of the eighth Roy (Beau) Bell hit a three-run homer that proved the margin of victory.

* * *

One of the season's starriest individual shows was a one-hit pitching performance by young Sid Hudson of the Washington Senators last night at St. Louis, where he ended the Browns'

LEADING ISSUES MOVE FORWARD IN SLOW MART

Dealings Sluggish as Traders Await France's Decision on Germany's Terms.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Leading stocks edged forward in today's market despite the inclination of most traders to await France's decision on Germany's armistice terms.

Dealings were sluggish from the start. While there were minor declines in evidence here and there at the beginning of the final hour, fractional advances predominated.

Wall Street seemed mildly cheered by indications the British may have taken the major part of the French fleet, thus bettering their chances of stopping the Nazis.

Stocks receiving support were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Sears Roebuck, Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, Consolidated Edison, Santa Fe, Southern Railway and Brooklyn - Manhattan Transit.

Bonds failed to exhibit definite trends and commodities were a trifle mixed.

Bolstering market sentiment were reports of expanding department store sales throughout the country. Best increases were shown by the federal reserve districts of Cleveland, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Richmond and Atlanta.

DUCE'S PLANES ATTACK FLEET AT ALEXANDRIA

Drop Bombs Over British and French Ships in Harbor, None Hit.

the British said. The British reported three soldiers were slightly wounded. Many Egyptians, indignant over casualties and damages caused by the raid in what they termed a violation of Premier Mussolini's pledge not to attack Egypt, expressed belief that a declaration of war by Egypt against Italy now was only a matter of hours.

Another Egyptian city—Cario—was visited by Italian planes, but no bombs were dropped. It was Cairo's first air raid alarm of the war. Four persons were hurt by shrapnel from the anti-aircraft fire.

Hundreds of persons still in the streets of Alexandria went to shelters calmly when the first alarm sounded. Thousands of others fled from their beds to shelters in night gowns and bathrobes.

Machine gun fire from British fighters sent one enemy plane crashing into the sea in flames.

There were three alarms between 1:15 a. m. and 6:30 a. m. On the third appearance the raiders headed toward the sea without dropping any bombs when they encountered heavy defense fire.

Waves of Planes Attack Britain.

LONDON—(AP)—Waves of German planes swooped over England early today for the third time in four days, scattered bombs along the east coast and killed three civilians before they were driven out to sea.

Three persons were wounded, the government reported.

Fierce anti-aircraft fire and quick action of British fighter planes appeared to have scattered the raiders and prevented them from concentrating on any objective. Numerous fires reddened the sky, but the air ministry said the damage was not extensive.

One eye-witness said the Germans had resorted to "hit and run" tactics.

Following the procedure adopted earlier in the week, the Nazi bombers began their attack shortly after midnight, and the thunder of bomb explosions and the boom of anti-aircraft fire echoed along the coast until just before dawn.

Many residents along the southeast, east and northeast shores spent most of the night in air raid shelters.

Military circles said less than 100 bombers participated in the raids.

Citizens scared by rumors of "screaming bombs" and "siren bombs" were informed by military authorities that "all bombs whistle coming down" and give "the listener ample time to lie flat" if he happens to be caught where no shelter is available.

The three victims were a man, his wife and a servant, who took refuge in the garden of their home in a Suffolk town. The bomb which killed them partly demolished a nearby house.

In one northeastern area the German planes attacked in relays for more than two hours.

First Air Attack On Berlin Area.

BERLIN—(AP)—Seven persons were injured and buildings were damaged in the vicinity of Berlin today in the first air attack of the war on the Berlin region.

DNB, official German news agency, said the buildings hit included a hospital.

(The French asserted without elaboration June 8 that naval bombers had raided factories in the Berlin suburbs. An authorized Berlin spokesman declared there was "absoluately no truth" to this French announcement.)

Two civilians were injured slightly at Bremen by explosive and incendiary bombs, DNB said.

Two incendiary bombs which struck near the railway station in Babelsberg, a Berlin suburb, damaged a garage and automobiles and wrecked an automatic telephone system.

political judgment, they'll keep a third fellow from coming in here and taking the nomination from them.

"I'm of the opinion that one or the other of them can get the nomination. At the present time, I think Dewey has more votes than Taft but I've talked to a lot of fellows who think the ticket ought to be Taft or Dewey. That's my personal opinion too but whether that can be brought about, I don't know."

The struggle centered in a meeting of the national defense subcommittee which is charged with the task of framing a stand on the rapidly changing war situation.

"It will be a straightforward non-involvment, anti-war declaration, of somebody's going to the floor with a minority report," Orville Buillington of Texas, leading peace-party advocate on the subcommittee, declared.
